Vila do Bispo, Algarve

Aldeia da Pedralva is a rural village in Vila do Bispo, Algarve. This village, where once lived 100 people, went through a painful process of desertification until it had only 9 inhabitants. After the negotiation and purchase of all the houses, the process of urban reconstruction began, trying to reproduce its rural environment through the use of old unrestored furniture in all the houses, as well as the use of building materials faithful to the old buildings.

With the main goal to be an Active Village tourism, Pedralva has at your disposal an array of activities with 32 bikes and more than 300km of trails of Mountain Biking, surf school, hiking material, diving courses among many other nature related activities.

Here you can feel the unique energy of a traditional portuguese village, with countryside, sea and nature in its pure state.
